Cody Maierhoffer 2nd hour Ms.Smith Book Review Fade to Black Fade to Black by Alex Flinn is realistic fiction. This is realistic fiction which draws more people to the book because it's a true and possible to happen thing and this book follows 100 percent of that because HIV is a very causable disease although Alex Crusan is figuring out whether he wants to tell people how it happened or not.

Fade to Black by Alex Flinn - Goodreads

Fade To Black is an absolutely unique and beautiful story. Told in three conflicting point of views, it shows how different "truth" can be. Alex Flinn got into the head of both Alex and Daria in a way that will stay with you. Not because you see how they are inside, but because you see, through their eyes, how they are seen by others.

The after-school-special approach to the issues and the inclusion of several mid-90s cultural references make Fade to Black read as though it were written a decade ago. Not to say fans won't pick up this acclaimed author's latest mystery, but literary merit is sacrificed when edgy tension takes a backseat to preachy sentimentality.
